POLICE: WOMAN MADE FALSE REPORT ABOUT “BEING STABBED IN THE VAGINA” ON VALENTINE’S DAY

February 19, 2015 by Leslie Simon
On Valentine’s Day, Heather Freeman told police a Hispanic male intruder broke into her South Carolina home, “sexually assaulted her and then stabbed her in the vagina,” according to police reports.

Turns out the 29-year-old woman made the whole sordid tale up—though she spun a pretty impressive web of lies.

When cops arrived at Freeman’s house on February 14, she had blood all over her face, neck and groin area.

She was then transported to a local hospital for treatment, which is when officers hung back and searched her neighborhood for her suspected attacker.

When Freeman was interviewed again in her hospital room, she they changed her story and said the main wasn’t Hispanic. He was African American.

After additional questioning, the alleged victim recanted and admitted “she had made the whole story up.”

Why? We can’t even begin to imagine. Freeman was arrested and charged with filing a false police report, which is a felony.

After three hours in custody, Freeman and her unharmed vagina were released.
