Police: Broward woman falsely accused Greenacres officer of rape

Julius Whigham II

Updated August 22, 2015  Filed in crime.

Sabrina Eisenhart

GREENACRES – A 27-year-old Deerfield Beach woman was arrested this week after she allegedly made a false accusation of rape against a city police officer.

Police on Thursday charged Sabrina Lea Eisenhart with filing a false report. She was being held without bail Friday night.

She had warrants in unrelated cases and was taken into custody Thursday evening during a traffic stop in the area of Jog Road and Forest Hill Boulevard, according a probable-cause arrest affidavit made public Friday.

Eisenhart recanted her prior statements regarding the alleged May sexual assault and told officers that no rape happened, the affidavit said.

She reportedly made the allegation in May after police went to a home to investigate a reported disturbance between her and her boyfriend. Her boyfriend was arrested on an unrelated warrant and Eisenhart was taken to JFK Medical Center in Atlantis to be treated for injuries.
According to the affidavit, Eisenhart told officers investigating the rape allegation that she was placed into the back of a police car and a male drove for a couple of minutes before pulling over in a dark place. The officer then sexually assaulted her, she told investigators.
Investigators looking into the rape allegation reviewed GPS data, radio logs and conducted interviews, but did not find evidence that a crime had occurred, the affidavit said.
According to affidavit, Eisenhart on Thursday told officers that she had lied and apologized to the accused officer.

http://crime.blog.palmbeachpost.com/2015/08/22/police-broward-woman-falsely-accused-greenacres-officer-of-rape/