A 15-year-old girl who told police she had been raped this past weekend, admitted earlier today that she had fabricated the entire story.

Officers responded to the home on Trenton Street after receiving a call that the girl had been raped by an intruder who was attempting to burglarize the home.

LaTresha Woodruff, public information officer for the Conway Police Department, confirmed that when investigators started looking into the incident, the evidence did not support the statement made by the girl. “When we receive a call that someone has been raped, we take that very seriously and investigate the incident accordingly,” she said. “However, when investigators looked into this incident, the evidence found did not support the girl’s story.”

Filing a false police report is punishable by law and the girl may face charges in the incident as Woodruff confirmed that the matter will be forwarded to the prosecuting attorney’s office.

“It is unfortunate that she felt like she had to make these stories up,” Woodruff said. “This incident used a lot of manpower and concerned the public. The University of Central Arkansas issued bulletins on their alert system and it caused a lot of concern in the community. She may have to be held responsible for that.”
